NATION'S COAL SHORTAGE IS FIFTY MILLION TONS DUE TO WAR --- GARFIELD

Fuel Administrator Admits Coal Operators Have Made High Profits, But Believes Production is First--Improvement Noted Over Last Year.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, DEC. 26.—America faces a coal shortage of 50,000,000 tons today because of the war. This as the answer of Dr. Garfield, fuel administrator today to the inquiry of the senate committee investigating coal shortage. Coal operators have made high profits, Dr. Garfield admitted, but he declared it was impossible to check high prices without at the same time checking production.

"Production rather than prices," Dr. Garfield declared is our aim. Dr. Garfield declared increases had been granted operators in belief that higher prices are necessary to maintain production.

There are people who cannot see the reasonables of such a process the fuel administrator admitted. Dr. Garfield testified that production is 10 percent greater this year than last. This is not a sufficient increase to meet the war demands," said Dr. Garfield.

The great shortage is in bituminous coal, the witness said, but added that anthracite coal has been substituted for bituminous and thus there has been created an anthracite shortage. Because of severe weather I have considered the home consumer rather than the government" said Garfield.

With a discontented people we would be greatly hampered and I have attempted to keep homes warm. I can't guarantee that there will be no further suffering however. I believe the production system is well in hand, but the difficulties are great.

In detail he explained the method of fixing coal prices.

When complaints are received the federal trade commission is consulted to learn the cost of production. Then if the price fixed by the president is found so low that it gives too small a profit, an increase is granted. "In the interest of increased production." This increase is always temporary and provisional. Dr. Garfield said the public had no opportunity to be heard regarding these increases.

The policy is to allow coal to pass thru normal channels. Dr. Garfield said, altho he is authorized to state completely the distribution.

He testified that all army and navy coal was distributed at his order.

"I may say," Dr. Garfield said, "that our policy and that which I believe the president desires, is to interfere as little as possible with existing contracts and to take care of domestic consumption first when compatible with the fact that we are a nation at war."

Production of bituminous coal up to December, 1917, was a million tons over the production of the "entire record year of 1916," said Dr Garfield. He said that by the end of the year there will be shown and increase of 70,000,000 tons. This a normal increase," Garfield said, "but it isn't enough by half to meet the increased needs due to the war. To meet the shortage I have emphasized production rather than price. I have held off as long as possible that sort of government control which would discourage

OHIO SOLON MAY SUCCEED NEVADA MAN

Sen. Pomerene Has Second Call for Chairmanship of I. C. C. Committee.

SENATOR NEWLANDS' DEATH BIG BLOW

Many Probable Candidates for Important Post Made Vacant by Death.

WASHINGTON, DEC. 26—John Skelton Williams, controller of the currency, will tonight be named railroad dictator, according to good authority. It was stated the president has determined taking this step without consulting congress. The entire operation of the railroads will be placed in Williams' hands and he will be given power thru which use of he will be able to bring order out of the existing transportation chaos.

When the railroad representatives here learned of the impending appointment they made no effort to cancel their opposition.

From experience with Mr. Williams the railroad magnates have a conviction that the appointment will not prove satisfactory to them.

WASHINGTON, DEC. 26—The death of Senator Newlands, of Nevada, has so upset the senate organization that leaders today were considering the advisability of calling a party caucus to straighten the tangle. Strict observance of the seniority rule would give the I. C. C. chairmanship formerly held by Senator Newlands to Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina. This chairman has charge of all railroad legislation with the railroad problem in its unsolved state the position is looked upon as the most important in congress at this time. If Smith should decline the position to retain the important chairmanship of the emmigration committee, which he now holds, the place would go to Senator Pomerene, of Ohio, under the seniority rule. Senator Pomerene, however, occupies the chairmanship of the privilege and elections committee, having charge of the La Follette investigation, the next ranking senator is Meyers, of Montana, who as chairman public lands committee, is busily engaged with the con-

27 STATES LEAVE THE BOOZE COLUMN

Reviews Steady Progress of Federal Govt. Since First Legislation In '83.

WASHINGTON, DEC. 26—Congressman Webb, dry leader in the house and chairman of the judiciary committee, has prepared a record showing the steady progress of prohibition in the United States. He says:

"One by one the state have fallen into line until the dry territory in the United States consists of twenty-seven states, 2400 counties, one territory, one insular possession and the District of Columbia, and the dry area is larger than England, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland, Ireland, Rumania, Bulgaria, Greece, Belgium and Servia combined. The dry area sustains a population of 56,000,000 people.

"The prohibition movement is resistlessly rolling on. But a few years ago

Bird Soldiers Equipped with Cameras Bring Back Much Information.

"Pigeongrams" are quite the latest sort of quick delivery message, and over on the battle front of Flanders this sort of message is just about the finest kind the men high up in charge of the army over there like to get.

For it happens that the carrier-pigeon has come into its greatest usefulness during this war. Back of the lines there has been established quarters for the birds, and it has been the great delight of the Poilus to train and care for these speedy, faithful messengers.

"The "homing instinct" has ever been a fascinating problem, and has engaged the attention of naturalists for years. Careful observations and scientifically conducted experimental tests have been made by savants, and while the opinions of these eminent

AERIAL ROUTES FOR MAILS DISCUSSED

Germany Making Exhaustive Plans for Commercial Invasion of Russia.

PARIS, DEC. 26.—Two new transportation routes across Europe have been proposed in order to break the monopoly which Germany and Austria-Hungary have established of the traffic between western Europe and Russia. Until 1914 travelers from London, Paris, Geneva and Milan, if bound for Petrograd, were obliged to go either by way of Berlin or Vienna. The two new routes now under consideration are intended to enable travelers to cross the continent of Europe without passing thru the German or Austro-Hungarian capitals.

What is called the "northern route" is projected to connect London with Petrograd by way of Sweden; thru trains to be ferried from Newcastle across the North sea to Gothenburg, to proceed over Swedish rails to the

SHERIDAN MEN NOW READY TO GO TO FRANCE

CAMP SHERIDAN, ALA., DEC 26—While the Ohio special, bearing more than 200 wives and mothers of soldiers training in the Ohio National Guard division, was speeding northward today, the soldiers went about their appointed duties, firm in the belief that they would not be in America many weeks. It was expected that the division would be transported to France, to make room for the men called in the next draft. From four to six months' training abroad is looked for before the men are marched to the firing line.

More than 500 Ohioans, it was estimated, visited the soldiers Xmas day and the majority of them were still in Montgomery today, planning to remain thru New Years.

Gov. Cox remained in camp today, visiting the various units of the division.

U.S. SECRET SERVICE COPING SUCCESSFULLY WITH REVOLUTIONARIES

Numerous Movements, All Financed by German Gold are Under Effective Surveillance--Rifles and Munitions Discovered on Pacific Coast.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, DEC. 26.—Sharp measures have been taken by the U. S. government to prevent any Bolshevik operations in this country. In admitting this today officials of the department of justice simultaneously clamped down the lid on all explanations of what is being done to prevent revolutionary movements being fostered in the U. S. Until a complete official report has been received from port officials on the Pacific coast regarding the presence of rifles and ammunitions alleged to have been brot there in the vessel Shilka, which was manned by a Bolsheviki crew, the department refuses to confirm the report that the munitions were consigned to the I. W. W. for revolutionary purposes. The situation is peculiar. The pro German campaign carried on within the U. S. ever since the commencement of the world war, still spreads out like a spired web. Included in the activity are Irish agitators who have been trying. There are the Mexican and Central American revolutionists, who have been fully financed by German money in the expectation that they would be able to force a revolution which would necessitate the U. S. keeping its forces occupied here.

Industrial workers have fostered sabotage in the mills, mines and the forests of the west and they are also alleged to have been "egged on" to impossible conspiracies by German money. And there have been minor movements in many places which cannot be given publicity.

In no instance has any one effort to have led trouble for the government been successful. The efficiency of the various governmental bureaus, whose task it has been to cope with traitors and near traitors have been marked. It is unwise even to hint at what has been done but the wholesale arrests made in many sections of the country from time to time has prevented possible organized outbreak. Generally speaking the officials say the work of checking workers has been since that time the department of

NATION HAS BIG WHEAT SUPPLY NOW

Entire Country Could Live on Stock Accumulated for Five Months.

RAIL FACILITIES OF NO CONCERN

Flour Exports to Allies Have Increased 50 Percent Over Last Year.

WASHINGTON, DEC 26—The nation now has a full five months' supply of flour and wheat, despite the unrestrained foreign buying, which has helped to drain the market, Food Administrator Hoover announced today. Hoover declared that if for any reason the marketing of wheat from the farms were stopped the entire country could exist five months on the stock already accumulated along railroads.

Reports show that the stocks now are much larger than the wheat handlers believed. The grain corporation reports to Hoover that flour exports to the nation's allies have increased 50 percent over last year.

COSHOCTON TO SUPPORT ONE FRENCH CHILD

Coshocton people will enjoy the distinction and satisfaction of supporting a French war orphan thru the donations made at the Municipal Christmas tree celebration Christmas night. A little over $12 was raised by voluntary contributions to the orphan chest placed in front of the Christmas tree. It takes $72 to support a war orphan two years. The balance will be donated by the Elk lodge, there having lackily been a surplus in the Charity fund after buying the tree and taking care of the local charity work.

The Municipal Christmas tree celebration was a pronounced success in every way. Shortly after 7:00 the church bells of the city commenced pealing forth their welcome message and hundreds of people gathered in front of the courthouse to witness the ceremonies. At 7:45 Mayor B. L. Kidd and on behalf the assistance of C. A. Brode, lighted the Christmas tree. James W. Fox took charge of ceremonies. Rev. J. J. Weaver, choir voice, is adapted to open the singing from the balcony of the Park hotel, prevailing the throng in the street below and surrounding the Christmas tree while Mrs. John C. Kerlin led in the singing of the Christmas carols, "America," "Holy Night," and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing." Most inspiring of all was the patriotic air "Keep the Home Fire Burning," many of the audience joining in with much fervor.

Geo. M. Gray standing on the platform in front of the tree delivered a brief address as a prelude to the taking of donations for the war orphan fund. He said it is not a time for speech making, but a time for action. He touched upon the arrival of the American troops in France and of General Pershing's words "We are here," which Mr. Gray said will go down in history along with the words of Patrick Henry during Revolutionary days and Abraham Lincoln's memorial address at Gettysburg. Miss Edith Craighead and Master Walter Coe Craighead represented typical war or-

ERWIN COX DIES SUDDENLY FROM BRAIN ABSCESS

Death came suddenly Wednesday morning at six o'clock to Erwin Toulon Cox, aged 18, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando B. Cox, North Second street. The young man had been ill but a little Friday evening. He suffered from cerebral abscess and it proved fatal.

Erwin Cox was born in Coshocton and spent his entire life here. For the past two years he has been employed at times as a page in the capacity of doorkeeper at the Dome. Recently he was rejected for the navy service in this city. He enjoyed a wide acquaintance and endeared to almost every walk of life. His congenial smile and pleasant word was valued by scores of friends, who had learned to return his smile in the face of reverses. The suddenness of the young man's death makes it doubly sad, for few of his acquaintances knew of his illness.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Cox, two brothers, Solomon and Theodore, of the home and three sisters, Mrs. Jacob Payne, of Springfield, Mrs. Dennis Dunn, of Detroit, and Weltha Cox of the home, survive.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of the young man's uncle, Frank Cox, on South Ninth street. Rev. John I. Weaver will be in charge, and burial will be made in South Lawn cemetery.

County Has Paid Nearly All Of The Red Cross War Relief Fund Pledges

Magruder, county treasurer of the fund, has received a report of the amount which has been paid by each county, together with the amount pledged. The per cent that each county has paid is figured on a basis of the amount pledged, and not on the county's allotment.

Coshocton county is listed in the report as having paid 99 percent, and is only $30 short of having its entire subscription paid. Part of this $30 has been collected, and all will be sent in by the first of the year. Coshocton county subscribed $20,267.58.

Guernsey county subscribed $9,225.97, and has paid 98 percent. Holmes county subscribed nine thousand dollars, and has paid 98 percent. Muskingum county has paid only 79 percent. Tuscarawas is overpaid, but only subscribed $8,417.95.

here to pass the holidays, lent a homelike air to the occasion.

Mess halls have been decorated with holly and mistletoe, and men have prepared for every mess. Great mountains of present are piled high in every barracks. None speaks of the future these days—what another Xmas may bring. Soldiers and officers are drawn more closely together by human sympathy.

Almost every incident of the day draws sharply the line of contrast Xmas 1917 and Xmas 1918. One gazes to the right and, silhoutted against the gray skline are a row of unpainted buildings where a year ago a wheat crop was struggling for existence. To the left stands the great base hospital, where 500 soldier boys will take their Xmas dinners from trays served by white robed nurses, who wear the Red Cross. A year ago the same boys were hustling home with armfuls of presents.

Everywhere is the olive drab of the army. Every time a sentinel comes into view, his rifle over his shoulder, or a bugle sounds, one is reminded America is at war. A Yule-tide setting does not camouflag that.

thruout Italy.

"It is apparent that the Germans have not given up all hope of bringing about a social upheaval in Italy, as they did in Russia after their victorious campaigns of 1915.

"No matter how intensive this subversive propaganda may be, nevertheless, we can confidently rely on the fighting morale of the Italian people.

"Along the western front the enemy has continued his harrasing raids with a view to keeping the allied forces on the alert. However none of the engagements recorded in the west were of more than local importance.

"In the region of the Argonne Forest and Woevere, heavy assaults were launched against the French. These, however, were readily repulsed.

"Infantry actions of more than usual intensity were reported in Upper Alsace and Lorraine.

"Artillery duels were particularly lively in Lorraine and Champagne.

"The British front was the scene of a number of raids and hostile attacks in force at various points. In the area of Cambrai, south of Arras, and north of Ypres, the Germans pushed forward several units in engagements of a local character. No material results were achieved.

"It would appear that as a forerunner to the German offensive heralded to be launched in the west, an intensive peace propaganda is to be initiated.

"Careful examination of the situation reveals that the enemy is again preparing to sue for "peace before victory."

"Information from various sources confirms the reports that the Germans would have the world believe that the military situation is such that they are able to dictate the terms of peace. They therefore threatened unless this dictated peace is accepted by the allied powers and ourselves, the German forces now being concentrated on the western front will break thru the allies line in the west.

"The various report of immediate peace proposals by the Germans on seemingly favorable terms should not for a moment induce us to slacken our preparations for war.

"It is only necessary for us to recall that during the Xmas season of last year the Germans put forth very similar peace rumors.

"In considering the general military situation in its true light, it must be understood that the Germans realize that withing a short time our armies will for the principla body of fresh strategic reserves remaining for action on the battle fields of Europe. Thus no matter what superiority in men and guns the enemy may for the time being be able to bring to bear in the west and even admitting an eventual modification of the allied line in his favor, nevertheless he knows that in so far as it is humanly possible to foresee, his effort will inevitably result in merely a local success which can have no determining influence on the final outcome of the war.

"For the first two years of the war France bore the brunt of battle while Great Britain was preparing.

"Since the defeat of the German forces in front of Verdun, England and the British dominions have taken over an increasingly large share of the burden of the war.

"Italy, has, to the limit of her forces, also assumed a considerable share of this burden.

"When, as a result of the defection of the Russian forces, the weight of Austro-German pressure was directed against Italy, France and England united in coming to the rescue of their ally and are today aiding the Italian armies.

"It is our duty therefore in looking to the future to realize that we are to fulfill the pledge we made on entering the war. If we are to fight this war to a successful conclusion we must assume the full responsibility which rests upon us. We have the freshest forces in the struggle; we have the reserve man power and the reserve mechanical power.

"Our armies constitute the reserves of victory.

"On the Russia the armistice negotiations having been concluded, peace negotiations are about to be entered upon by the representatives of the defacto Russian government and the German negotiators.

"Report of the dissatisfaction of a large element of the Russian population, especially in Southern and Central Russia, with the terms of the armistice has led to the formation of an active opposition, which it is believed will endeavor to assist all attacks to enforce the proposals agreed to by the Lenine government."

"SAY UNCLE"

It is the well known command of the bully who pinches the kiddie's arm until he complies with the order. In Mary Pickford's new Artcraft picture at the Mystic theatre, the "bad man" compels her to say the word in a similar manner. However, in "A Romance of the Redwoods," little "Jennie" by saying the word is not freed of her worries as is the usual case, but rather begins to make trouble for herself as a result, which takes many feet of film to straighten out. Republican leaders, however, are making no secret of their belief that the disclosures to date have furnished an abundance of material for the coming congressional campaign. NEVER IN THE WORLD COULD I BELIEVE IT.

This Lady Was Told by Many That Pepsinco Would Help Her. But She Just Would Not Believe it.

Mrs. G. wasn't sick, but she had the same trouble after every meal. Heavy load, pain, bloating and sourness. The condition would pass off in time, but she really dreaded her meals. She often read of Pepsinco, and often heard of it, but never gave it enough thought to stop at the drug store and get a package, until a druggist gave her a small sample.

Mrs. G. now recommends Pepsinco to everyone she meets who complains of feeling bad. Never has Pepsinco had as good a booster as this lady since she discovered how good it really is.

Pepsinco is made to help all bad conditions of the stomach. It never fails. It is sold and recommended by all druggists. Positively guaranteed.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and cmily, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating thru the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

FINANCIAL LETTER

NEW YORK, DEC. 22.—As the year draws to a close the shadows of war deepen and Christmas cheer is subbed by a growing realization of what the war means to us. Evidently the titanic struggle across the Atlantic is approaching a critical period, for the Central Powers have been encouraged by the collapse of Russia and the check imposed upon the Italians. Peace talk of German origin is again in the air, but is not taken very seriously at Washington. The situation, however, is not so discouraging to the Allies as it seems, and ere long the trend will be in their favor, especially when American forces are able to make themselves felt in proportion to their ability; a result that cannot be long deferred. This is an appropriate hour for taking courage. Success and consequent peace are only a question of time.

Security values have fallen to lower levels owing to persistent liquidation and absence of buying power. The causes for this liquidation are becoming more and more evident. Briefly, they are war pressure, advanced interest rates, heavy taxes, diminished profits, the plight of American railroads, and selling to counterbalance excess profit taxes. Of these causes, the railroad problem easily comes first. Every person at all familiar with business affairs appreciates the real crux of the situation. Our railroads have been unjustly treated for a number of years by our lawmakers, guided more by prejudice than by intelligent comprehension. The responsibility for breakdown of the American railroad system should be squarely placed where it belongs; that is, upon those members of the Interstate Commerce Commission who steadily refused to allow the railroads to compensate themselves for increased costs of operation which they could not avoid. When every other line of industry has been obliged to charge more for its services to offset increased expenses, there was no reason why the railroads should be singled out for such unjust discrimination, particularly now that their maintenance is so vital, not only to the country as a whole, but to our success in winning the war. Without intension, perhaps, but because of a lack of railroad experience or actual incompetence, these officials starved the railroads, injured their credit and deprived them of the necessary means to preserve efficiency. Other drawbacks affected the railroads, but here rests the chief blame; the result being that when the stress of war came our roads were found weakened by starvation and threatened by a general breakdown. Clearly this was the consequence evidently of placing our transportation lines under the control of men subject to political influences. What is to be done? Mr. Wilson has a difficult task. Congress does not command the confidence of business men as it should, and it is questionable if it has the ability to handle so intricate and delicate a problem free from political prejudice. At least it has not yet shown any signs of such ability, and the safest course is to leave the railroad managers to work out their own salvation; their interests and those of the United States being identical at this time. The Government might with advantage to itself and the public insist upon unit operation, permit pooling and offer some sort of financial aid. Given this relief and adequate rates, our railroads could once more be placed upon a sound and efficient basis, such as the nation must have to obtain victory over our enemies, who have been very materially aided by misregulation of our own railroad.

The next depressing influence was the dividend outlook. Railroads are evidently expected to reduce their dividend rates. The excessive fall in such stocks as Pennsylvania, Atchison, New York Central, Union Pacific, Northwestern and other high grade issues, has been out of all proportion to the rise of interest rates. The decision of the Baltimore & Ohio directors in postponing action on the common and preferred dividends was extremely suggestive and caused the low record in these securities. The gross earnings of the company, it is announced will exceed those of last year by $12,500,000, but expenses were $16,000,000 greater than in 1916, a statement which illustrates a condition not confined to this particular property. It would seem, however, that dividend reductions have been almost fully discounted, and that some form of relief would soon be granted by the Government. New sources of liquidation which perhaps received less attention than deserved, were the selling of enemy holdings thru fear of confiscation by institutions which must now report to the Government; also to the selling for purpose of making definite reductions in tax statements. The weakness in values was not confined to railroads, but extended to industrial, which were much less affected. There is more or less slowing down in certain industries, particularly those devoted to unnecessaries, while the steel and kindred industries are running at top speed whenever conditions permit. Needless to say, the advanced cost of materials and labor will affect dividend prospects; and business men are much perplexed by transportation difficulties, scarcity of materials and labor, as well as the general uncertainty and depression induced by war. The Government report on winter wheat, the falling below expectations as to acreage and condition, promises a yield of 540,000,000 bushels, the third largest crop on record, this having been exceeded only by the harvests of 1914 and 1915. The total acreage was 42,000,000, or 5,000,000 less than the Government asked, while the yield is estimated at 192,000,000 bushels below what is desired. Fortunately, there is abundance of time for improvement in condition, which was reported at 79.3 on December 1st, as against 85.7 a year ago.

Whether the market has touched bottom or not it is impossible to say, tho many high grade securities are selling far below intrinsic values and have fully discounted existing circumstances. Now that winter has settled down no great decisive movements are to be anticipated at the seat of war in France, at least for a couple of months. Meanwhile both sides will prepare for a vigorous spring campaign, in which American troops will undoubtedly play an important and decisive part. For a long time to come war will dominate the security markets.

One thing seems certain. Many high grade investments are selling at prices which will yield handsome profits to purchasers after the war.

Government securities have been much more active, especially the Liberty loans which hold up well considering the prospect of another huge issue within three months at 4 1-2 per cent. The Anglo-French 5s showed a sharp recovery from their recent fall.

They renew their youth with fresh courage and quickened spirit. It sure is a pleasure to see the way they have come back and in such a short time too.

They are all loud in praise of Phosphated Iron the new wonder nerve and blood tonic. As one "old-timer" said, "I could fairly feel it putting the 'Pep' and 'kick' in my run-down, old body. I was worn out, all in and thot I was on my last legs, but come to find out all I needed was a tonic and bracer to put me on my feet and get me going again

"Believe me, Phosphated Iron is the goods, and say, it made a new woman of my wife too. We will never be without it on our house."

Honest physicians will tell you that Phosphates and Iron are the best tonics and health builders for the aged, nervous, weak and run down. It increases the quantity and quality of blood.

It makes thin, poor blood rich red and new

Rich, red blood pumped thru the veins drives out poison and carries health, strength and vigor to every part of the body. If you are run down, all in, lost your nerve, take a bracer, get next to yourself and try Phosphated Iron It really does what it claims It will not disappoint you, you can't go wrong on this tip. The picture is introduced by showing the origin of sin in the Garden of Eden altho every one of the seven reels have been passed by the Censorship Board. The story is absolutely unobjectionable, the same applies to the picture: there's nothing crude, vulgar or indecent. It is a clean story, cleanly told.

"CHILDREN OF THE REPUBLIC"

Zionists all over the world are today discussing with eager expectation the establishment of a Jewish Republic in Palestine. Their hopes are buoyed up by the virtual pledge of Great Britain that the Holy Land will be set apart for a Hebrew autonomous state, under the protection of Britain or a group of allied powers.

But it is noticeable that there is much disagreement as to the extent of the "restoration" which is desirable, or possible. Israel Zangwill, the British author, one of the foremost Zionists, suggests that the "Children of the Republic" should consist only of the Jews who have been oppressed in other lands—that Palestine should be merely a place of refuge.

That would indeed be an admirable use for the reconquered home of their fathers. And there is sound sense in such a restoration, quite aside from sentimental considerations. It is hardly possible that Palestine is capable of providing a home for the Jews of the whole world, even if they were all so infatuated with the Zionist idea as to leave their present abodes and return in a vast migration. It is a small land, and the Jewish race today numbers more than 13,000,000, immensely more than the Promised Land ever held.

Moreover, it is no longer a land "flowing with milk and honey." It is mostly a desert. Its soil has been impoverished, its ancient irrigation systems have fallen to ruin. There appears to have been a considerable deterioration of climate, adding its blighting influence to that of the long succession of ignorant and oppressive conquerors. It is doubtful whether the expenditure of so huge a sum as $100,000,000 which wealthy Jews now talk of raising for the purpose, would suffice for a restoration of cities, industries and agriculture great enough to provide a living for more than an additional million or two of Jewish colonists.

The question, however, is more theoretical than practical. It isn't likely that any great number of Jews will want to return to Palestine. They know that in most respects they are far better off where they are. Nine-tenths of them will doubtless be content with the knowledge that their holy places are redeemed from the defiling touch of the Turk, and that they could return, under honorable conditions, if they wished.

THE MAN WHO GRASPED AN OPPORTUNITY

There died in Philadelphia on Nov. 14th, a millionaire whose career is an example of opportunities presented by American institutions to the humblest. He was State Senator James P. McNichol, and he held the peculiarly American position of political boss.

In early life McNichol learned the need of economy. He managed to accumulate enough money to go into the contracting business on a humble scale. Then a great idea came to him. It required brains, ability and courage to put that idea into practice. But he did it. If he had not done so, he would probably have remained poor, and might have joined the ranks of those who deny that equality of opportunity exists in the United States. But he did not hesitate and the great idea brot him wealth

Now as to the idea. At that time Philadelphia was ruled by a man named Israel Durham, and the idea that came to McNichol was to get Durham's help in securing profitable contracts. He got it. The method used was simplicity itself. Like all great discoveries he kept it a secret, but it came to light during an investigation that was made at a period when a mayor of Philadelphia was conducting a rebellion against the boss. The investigation disclosed that by the simple process of making Durham a secret partner in the business, large contracts had been secured At about this time Durham found it convenient to take a very long vacation away from Philadelphia, and this gave McNichol another opportunity. He became the party leader and supreme political boss. A few days before his death he lost his control, but that event does not spoil the moral of this story, for he was overthrown by another self-made man, one Edwin S. Vare, a more efficient man at the political game

To those who hold the wealthy to be but trustees for a fund to be dispensed in charity to the poor, McNichol should be a splendid example. No charitable organization equaled him in liberality. Throughout his ward he had agents, popularly known as "henchmen," who heard applications for aid from any one in distress, and generally gave them relief. No poor family in that favored district needed to go cold or hungry. None needed to be dispossessed for non-payment of rent McNichol was ready to help. Unlike the charity organizations, he conducted no investigations to learn the character of the applicant. He cared nothing about that. Thru his henchmen he secured jobs for the unemployed. And the poor reciprocated by helping him carry elections. His charity closed their ears to all talk of reformers against political bosses and political gangs.

So what gave McNichol power was first, the privileged interests in need of a political agent or boss, and second the destitute poor with votes to give in return for charity or jobs. Privilege creates poverty, and Privilege and poverty combined create political bosses and gang rule. If Privilege is right, if it must not be destroyed, then its product, McNichol, was also right. If McNichol was an example of what should not be, then the privileged interests ought not to be. The reason reform movements fail to get permanently rid of men like McNichol is because they don't attack Privilege.

To business concerns the increased postal rates are a burden, it is true, but every time you lick a three-cent stamp just think it is helping to lick the kaiser and maybe it will taste better.

There are campaigns against the rat going on in this county and elsewhere. It's good business. Rat swatting as a winter sport is as profitable as fly swatting during the summer months.

Of course since the official price for cold storage eggs is only forty cents a dozen, we won't pay any more than that, but how are we to tell whether they are fresh or cold storage?

It was a good, old-fashioned Christmas, after all. And if you spent it in a wholesome way it will help you to live wholesomely until another Christmas comes.

Perhaps the packing plants and other looters of the people's food supply think they are entitled to extra dividends since the stuff they handle is so valuable.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS
BY WALT MASON

I've done my stunt as Santa Claus; with horse-hair whiskers on my jaws, I ran the Christmas tree; and all the Christmas gifts in sight were reminiscent of the fight that's on across the sea. My little girl, Evangeline, drew down a large tin submarine, and never raised a bawl; she said this instrument of crimes was more in keeping with the times than any sawdust doll. The lady drew a cartridge case, and happy smiles lit up his face, where I expected tears; Aunt Sarah got a flashing blade, and said for that she'd prayed and prayed for many weary years. One kid received a bright tin lance, and one a steed that couldn't prance, because its legs were sick, and there were soldiers made of zinc, lieutenants blue and colonels pink, and other warlike folk. There was no sign of peace on earth, oh, not a bogus nickel's worth upon that Christmas tree; my grandsire drew an aeroplane, and said a gift more safe and sane he surely never did see. And even the candy stuff was wrot in shape of cannonball and shot, and bomb and hand grenade; and as I ply my croaking pen I wonder if good will to men will ever permanently fade

A WELCOME AGENT

Today there toddled to my door a man who wished to sell a book; in times of peace he'd be a bore, and his long spiel I would not brook. His volume was the cleanest rot, but he insisted it was great, the kind of stuff that hits the spot, and makes a man a better skate. He talked a long and bridled streak, he made the good old language wilt, and I could listen for a week to such a line of bunk as this. He shunned the topics I abhor: he did not tell in ringing tones how he would run the blooming war, and fill the city with Teuton bones. He didn't try to show the means by which he'd finish up the scrap, and can the kaiser's submarines, and shoo the Huns clean off the map. He did not paint, in lurid tints, war's horrors on a foreign shore; his book, "One Thousand Household Hints," took all his eloquence, and more. There's nothing like a Household Hint, when one is tired of dead men's bones, and all the ghastly tales in print, of seamen sent to Davy Jones. It's good to find a book methinks, that tells how roaches should be shot, or how to make a line of inks that will not fade, corrode or blot. For all we hear and all we read brings war and bloodshed closer home; and so I said, "My friend, indeed, I'll take twelve copies of your tome."

New York Day-By-Day
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, DEC. 22.—As Samuel Pepys would record in his diary: Up early and idling nearly all the morning and then to the ironmonger's to buy some pounded brass and saw the fair pretty woman I have lately observed there. Thence to call on Frank Tinney, the minstrel, at the Friars and the talk is that Bide Dudley, the poet and playwright, is to go on the stage in a monologue.

We are enduring a lot these days, but the time may come when the horrors of the Paris commune will be repeated right here in New York. For a walk thru the town and saw Private Peat who has come to lecture on the war.

Met R. Brinkerhoff, the sketcher, who tells me he is shortly to draw pictures for Mr. Puliter's paper which pleases me mightly and we recalled the days when we lived at the same boarding house and knew the day of the week by the bill of fare.

With my wife, poor wretch, for a ride in R. Lillibridge's new gasolene chariot, which is more fashionable in shape than any coach he has, and in the park where we saw an accident and two young girls were left senseless at the roadside.

To an inn for a beaker of hot coffee and an African sang witty melodies and one in especial about a wounded officer who said to his fair nurse "I don't want to get well" caused much laughter

In the evening to a surprise dinner at the Clarige and each brought a gift and I fetched a cake made into two cubes like playing dice with the lucky numbers seven on all sides, and there came Neysa McMein, the artist, Jean Knott the penny ante sketcher, who traveled all the way from St. Louis, and all very merry. Home and then with comfort to sit with my wife, and my boy to read to me, and to bed, with my mind at mighty ease

Down on Park Row there is one of these old fashioned saloons that still serves free lunch It proves a boon to improvidential reporters at the raggly end of the week before pay day

The lunch is so situated that a patron may walk thru, reach out and grab off a tempting morsel and pass on out of the rear door without making a liquid purchase.

The other night a well known journalist breezed into the front door walked briskly to the lunch counter, reached out and speared a hot weiner wurst, stuck it in his pocket and started for the rear door.

He was just about to step out when there was an agonized wail from the barkeep who leaped over the mahogany with a bung-starter in his hand. "Come back here" he shouted. The newspaperman looked around. The weiner wursts were strung together and had not been clipped apart and so he was dragging about 15 yards of them after him before he was torpedoed

Some people are always taking the joy out of life. A mother and her young son went into a Broadway restaurant of the self serving type. At the same table there came a street corner Santa Claus. Santa removed his hat, whiskers, and gloves and set down to eat, paying no attention to the little fellow. He not only spoiled the boy's meal but he spoiled a fine Christmas illusion.

The ruling passion is economy. And the ruling fashion is to talk about it Thrift, a virtue heretofore exercised almost exclusively in New England, has descended upon lavish lobster palaced New York and captured it so irretrievably that upholstered females who used to compete in luncheon favors and limousine fittings now vie verbally in manufacturing menus calculated to give their consumers a maximum nutrition with a minimum of pleasure We have lightless, meatless, heatless, wheatless, and beefless days and more coming

PEOPLE'S FORUM

WHY TEACH GERMAN?

Editor The Tribune & Times-Age:

Since landing on the shores of God's country nearly fifty-nine years ago, I've often thot and wondered why the German language was taught. It is a language not spoken by other countries, excepting Germany's provinces. Neither is it a court language.

When international meetings are held at The Hague, or anywhere else, all representatives sent there must be French scholars, at least in talk and understanding, as French is the court language of the world.

The English language is mostly derived from the Latin; also Spain, Italy, Mexico and excepting Brazil, all South American countries talk Spanish, the prettiest and smoothest language spoken. Any one who has mostly mastered Latin, can soon pick up the Spanish While mastering German is no help to an English talking nation. So do as the Kaiser says about international laws: "'tis a mere scrap of paper."

A. H. THOMSON.

TO THE LOYAL PUBLIC.

Editor The Tribune:

An unqualithedly false impression has gained some footing in this city of the purposes and plans of the meeting of a large number of the citizens of the city at the Central school building last Friday evening.

This meeting was called by citizens of the city to discuss pro and con the advisability of continuing the study of the German language in our public schools.

The committee invited openly and indiscominately the citizens of the city to the meeting, urging upon them to bring as many others with them as possible and notifying them of the purpose of the meeting.

There was no secret of the time, place or purpose of the meeting and it was open to all citizens of the city.

An organization was effected with the undersigned as chairman and secretary. After the statement of the object of the meeting many speakers were called upon and spoke their sentiments.

It was the unanimous sense of the meeting that the German is a noble and beautiful language and that as a people we have no quarrel with Germany, but that by the skilful manipulation of school-book publishers in America the propaganda of Prussia is being surreptitiously and clandestinely fused into the school-books in use in our public schools and the minds of the youth poisoned and their Americanism undermined; that the teaching of German in our public schools is fostered and encouraged by the Prussian propagandists with a view to strengthen the hold of Prussianism on Americans and to weaken their loyalty to their our country; that the further teaching of that language in our common schools should cease until the books used for that purpose have been purged of every element of their propaganda.

A committee was appointed to draw resolutions to this effect for presentation to the local Board of Education, after which said resolutions together with the proceedings of the meeting would be published, but no publication was to be made until the minutes of the proceedings and the resolutions were ready.

There was no secret of any kind entered in the calling of the meeting, the time, place or purpose or proceedings, but it was deemed wise to make no publication until all the proceedings, resolutions,etc., were properly prepared

The meeting was composed of all classes and conditions of society, every body invited to be present and the discussion open for all opinions for or against The gentlemen present expressed themselves freely and not one of them is sorry or ashamed of having been there. Many came to learn for the first time of the insidious poison being daily injected into the minds of the youth of our city as well as elsewhere all over the Americas, and all left with the feeling that he had taken an important step toward stopping its flow into the youthful mind and that in doing so he had struck a blow in defense of our common country and of mankind in general.

Coshocton, O., Dec. 24, 1917.

F. M Marshall, Chairman.
Chas. T. Lichtell, Secretary

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE COSHOCTON SCHOOL BOARD

An announcement has been made that you will be asked to eliminate the study of the German language from the course now prescribed for use in the High school. I have reason to believe that there will be presented resolutions portraying many of the horrors that have been perpetrated during the war, and that these will be assigned as a reason why the study of the language should cease in Coshocton.

I grant you that the horrors portrayed from time to time are provocative of anger, and I readily join in the universal hope that those higher up, who are responsible may be properly punished, as I believe, in the end they will be.

But I submit that anger alone is not sufficient reason for the decision of so important a question. The angry man scarcely ever takes time to think a question thru. Hysteria is not a safe guide to reason. Impulse oft lands in the quagmire: logic is rather sure to find a resting place on a solid base, providing, of course, the premise is correct.

As a tax payer, and as one who has spent a good many thousands of dollars for educational purposes, I ask you to carefully consider the question before acting. There is no money I spend that gives me more pleasure than when I am assessed for educational purposes. I hope to see the time when the salaries now paid teachers will be doubled or better. But I am anxious that the schools of Coshocton be conducted with the sole purpose of making well rounded citizens, with a view to inspiring as many as possible to aspire to higher education. The most effectual higher education embraces a knowledge of the languages.

It does not follow that such an education will aid the possessor in the making of a living. But it does follow, as the night follows the day, that such an education does help its possessor to live. And it is the inability to live in the spiritual sense, growing out of higher education, that is responsible for most of the mistakes that are made in the life of the people by and in the large today. If there is any criticism of the public school system in the nation as a whole it is that it has too often been controlled by petty politics, and any student of history, past or current, knows that the petty politician has but little if any conception of the value of education. The hysteria that now demands the elimination of the study of the German language is of the same type as the politician who refuses to endorse President Wilson because he happened to be elected as the candidate of the Democratic party. Such self appointed leaders are always unsafe.

So I plead with you to not take hasty action. Take time to think it thru.

Are there good reasons for the study of the German language? I am told by one of the most qualified educators in Coshocton that the German language is the most expressive of any of the known languages with the possible exception of the ancient Greek. Dr. Harris, the United States Commissioner of education, I am told by the same educator, recommends that the study of the German language be continued in the High schools, the Preparatory schools and the colleges. If there is a man in the nation who stands higher than Dr. Harris as an educator, I do not know of him. I do not know of a first class journal in the nation that recommends the elimination of the study of the German language. On the contrary there are several with which I am familiar, that advise its continuance.

I occasionally read of men who declare that never again shall the United States trade with or fellowship with the people of the German nation. If that, unhappily, shall be true, then I submit that if Germany is thus forced to be our enemy socially, commercially, and possibly religiously, that it will be safer for the people of the United States to have a workable understanding of the German language, that we may be enabled to read her newspapers and magazines and books, and thus keep in touch with the German attitude of mind in all the phases in which she is likely to be our enemy. It is morally certain that Germany will continue to know our language, whether she, in the future, is our enemy or our friend. Shall we give her the advantage thus obtained, or shall we place ourselves in an attitude of possible equality?

But, President Wilson has told us that we are not fighting the German people—that we are fighting the "thing" known as German kultur, born of the spirit of German militarism. That, we ought to fight, and I believe we will continue to fight, until it is subdued. But ceasing to study the German language will not contribute to the destruction of the "thing." Rather will we be the better able to fight it if we know their language and can thus be in touch with their teachings and beliefs.

Americans are too much disposed to measure all questions in a strictly material sense. The dollar is too often the badge of honor or efficiency. The dweller in a hovel today is oftimes the leader of "society" tomorrow, because, perchance there has been a sudden accumulation of wealth. Gaudy display by such is taken as an evidence of refinement, and the thotless believe that real life comes from the spending of money rather than from the cultivation of intellect. It is a sorry attitude of mind. But, taking this sordid view only, is there good reason for studying the language of the Germans?

At the commencement of the war the United States were dependent upon Germany for dyes. There was great inconvenience and much loss of money as a result. American capital at once established laboratories and engaged skillful chemists, to make experiments The result is that the United States is in a fair way to not only supply her own wants, but will be prepared to go into the markets of the world seeking trade. I recently visited a factory which covers seventeen acres, devoted exclusively to the making of dyes, that, before the war were imported from Germany. The investment is more than three millions of dollars. The factory is located in an Ohio city. It pays its head chemist a salary of twenty thousand dollars per year. It not only is supplying the color makers and the fabric manufacturers with dye stuffs, but it is preparing to go into the markets of the world. With such an investment it must have the world for its market. In the happy time coming, when the war is over, the chemical factories of the German Empire will again go into the world seeking a market for their products. The Ohio city factory will be their competitor. Will there be an advantage if its managers understand the German language, are able to study the German trade journals, and correspond with their customers in the language in which they are trained? The question answers itself. The Ohio factory is only one of several that have been established.

But, the man who is governed by impulse, the man who does not think it thru, who regards a belief as a fact, will wave all this aside, and say that because we are at war with Germany, and because German soldiers have committed crimes, we should not allow the language to be taught. If so, what, then shall be taught? Shall it be French, or Spanish, or Italian? Suppose that in ten years we are at war with such a Nation, shall we then discontinue the study of that language? Are we only to study the language of a people with whom we have never had a dispute? If that is to be the rule then we would have to change our language to Esperanto. We could not even study English. Yes, says the man who is tired when asked to think it thru, but the German soldiers have committed unspeakable outrages, and I do not want the children of Coshocton to understand their language. Has such a man stopped to consider that war is always attended with horrors? And again civilization is frequently shocked by horrors that take place when there is no war. Does he remember that the United States has often been disgraced by mobs, who have destroyed property and made an auto de fe of the writhing human victim upon whom they were wreaking their vengeance? Even Coshocton once disgraced itself by allowing a mob to hang a man, and then added further disgrace because the sworn officers of the law made no attempt to bring the guilty to justice. Will other nations abandon the study of English because we occasionally burn a man at the stake? Are we to cease living in Coshocton because officers of the law refuse to be bound by their oath, or shall we endeavor to so train the rising generation that officers in the future shall have regard for their oath? Spirituality, born of the training of the intellect by teachers who are "forward looking" in their habits of thought, coupled with the religious guidance of men who recognize the difference between the worship of the Living God and puny, narrow sectarian partisanship, will result in the training of a generation that will regard the world as their field and all men as their brothers.

There is not a people in human history that has not at some time disgraced itself. It would be, therefore, impossible to regulate a course of study along the lines laid down by those who oppose the study of the German language. All languages and all history would be barred.

Members of the Board, I appeal to you to not be governed by the hysteria that is endeavoring to sway you.

We ought to be far enough advanced to shake off our provincialism, and train the coming generations for world problems.—J. F. MEEK.

The Jollier

It's rumored that those secret resolutions against propaganda will provide employment for the county coal committee.

Someone has to cut the insidious pages from the Japanese and Russian text books at the high school, so why not the coal committee.

Christmas furloughs are more popular among the Sammies than with the government, it seems.

Those who are waiting for January sales will probably be disappointed this year.

If you couldn't afford all the gifts you wanted to give, console yourself with the thot that you will receive less than you expected.

It's all right to be patriotic if we don't get the idea the whole burden of the war rests on our important shoulders.

And call our fellows disloyal because they can't get interested in our blatant wails of calamity.

Then, too our own popularity must always be considered in determining how loud we shout and where we do it.

NEW TRAFFIC

neighborhood of Stockholm, to be ferried again across the Gulf of Bothnia connecting with Finland lines that would make Petrograd accessible.

The Southern Route.

The proposed "southern route" would follow as nearly as possible the 45th degree of latitude. Starting from Bordeaux, the line would make a circuit around the mountainous region of central France to reach Lyons, whence it would take a southeasterly direction, passing thru a new tunnel under the Alps to reach Milan. Venice, Agram, Belgrade, Bukarest and Odessa would be the other principal stations on this route.

These routes, their advocates argue, would be important factors in the future economic struggle.

Stories reach Paris of the training in Germany of thousands of clerks, interpreters and commercial representatives for the commercial invasions of Russia. One hundred thousand Russian prisoners of war, it is said, are also being initiated in German business and industrial methods, while at the same time learning the languages. This organization with a view to competition for Russian business, added to the natural advantage of proximity the Germans enjoy, is presented as another argument why western Europe can no longer allow them to monopolize the trans-continental traffic.

Will Tunnel Channel

When the southern and northern routes are completed, the gap of 500 miles between the Russian and Anglo Indian rails may be filled and then with the tunnel under the English channel completed, one would be able to take the train at London and go clear by rail to Bombay and Calcutta. Engineers are now studying another route from Irkutsk on the Trans-Siberian route to Canton across the whole of China.

Important mail matter soon may be carried in much shorter time. The central empires are understood to be working toward the establishment of regular aerial communication with their allies, and the same subject has been under discussion in France and England. It is considered here as certain that letters soon will be carried thru the air. Enterprising newspapers may also adopt this method for the rapid transportation of late editions.

DRY LEADER

the United States looked like a vast alcoholic morass, but the drying process has gone steadily on.

"Some notable victories have been won in congress by the temperance forces during the last few years. Here they are chronologically:

"In 1883 the excessive use of intoxicating liquors was declared a bar to appointment in the civil service.

"In 1890 congress subjected original packages of liquor, transported into a state, to the police powers of such state. This was known as the 'Wilson act,' but it was practically emasculated by the supreme court.

Army Canteen Abolished

"In 1900 congress forbade the sale of intoxicating liquor in any military post, canteen or transport or any premises used for military purposes.

"In 1903 congress declared that no intoxicating liquor of any character should be sold within the limits of the Capitol Building.

"In 1907 it was declared a crime to sell intoxicating liquors in any immigrant station.

"In 1909 interstate carriers were forbiden to collect the purchase price of liquor before or after delivery from the consignee, which killed the odious C. O. D. express business in liquor.

"In 1909 congress declared intoxicating liquors nonmailable.

"In 1912 congress forbade the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors in Alaska under certain conditions.

"On March 1, 1913, congress by an overwhelming vote, and over the president's veto, forbade the importation of intoxicants into a state to be received, used, or possessed, contrary to the laws of such states. This was the most decisive and important blow the liquor interests ever received at the hands of congress up to that time. This is known as the Webb-Kenyon act.

Territories Made Dry

"On February 14, 1917, congress passed the Alaska absolute prohibition law.

"On March 2, 1917, the Porto Rican prohibition law was passed.

"OnO March 3, 1917, the district of Columbia was made dry.

"On March 3, 1917, congress forbade the ending of advertisements and letters soliciting liquor orders into states which made it unlawful to so advertise or solicit orders.

"On March 3, 1917, congress declared that persons who order or cause to be shipped into a dry state intoxicating liquors except for scientific, sacramental, medicinal and mechanical purposes shall be punished.

"August 10, 1917, congress prohibited absolutely the production of distilled spirits for beverage purposes. The same act authorizes the president to stop the manufacture of wine and beer and to regulate their alcoholic content."

CARRIER PIGEONS

students has not always been accepted as conclusive, it still remains one of the most interesting questions of zoological science.

Saves Men's Lives.

Some of the birds have been equipped with a camera and have been able in this way to observe all the movements of the enemy and return to their commander with the valuable information. But since he cannot talk, the camera at his breast speaks for him, and, best of all, the camera cannot lie.

When the camera is used on the birds it is held in place by elastic suspenders passed over the back. The objective points straight downward. A Cockson's causes the instantaneous shutter to open at regular intervals of half a minute. Thirty pictures can be taken and this will cover a course of ten miles.

The apparatus weighs about two and a half ounces, and it has been proven that pigeons can carry this weight for over a hundred miles with ease.

Rarely Shot Down.

The bird soldiers on the other side are being used principally as carriers of vital messages. They are better than the wireless for they fly so high that they rarely are shot down and there is little danger of the enemy getting the information.

The use of the carrier pigeon as a messenger brought about by its wonderful faculty, which permits them to no matter from what great distance find their way back to their nests is of ancient date.

Two historic examples of their worth may be recalled.

In 1815, thanks to these messengers, Rothchild was informed of the result of the Battle of Waterloo three days before the English government, and was able to make his famous coup at the Bourse.

In 1870, during the siege of Paris, the service of the pigeons in transmitting messages overhead beyond the enemy's lines is well known.

The bird pollns are kept in specially constructed cotes on wheels.

Who is the Conqueror?

Cannot Be Pioneers.

The world is explored. There is no more "West" in the old sense of the term; no empty, unknown land, dowered by imagination with all the riches of the rainbow's foot, for the migratory adventurer to take and hold. Our sons may become heroes, poets, captains of industry, scientists, artists or inventors; but they cannot be pioneers. There isn't room.—Exchange.

Saving the Eyes.

The eyes were made to use without a doubt. So were the hands and feet, and all can be abused and become sources of pain forever. A lifetime of just ordinary vision, just seeing what goes on about us, is about all we can expect from a pair of normal eyes. Added strain like fine sewing, too much reading and poor light will use them up so much sooner. Wage-earners have to sacrifice many things, including eyes, but for absolute waste of vision there is no excuse.

BISHOP MAKES AN APPEAL FOR NEEDY ORPHANS

The following appeal for the Orphans was read Sunday at the Sacred Heart church:

To the Clergy and Laity of the Diocese of Columbus.

Dearly Beloved: In coming to you today to make an appeal for the Orphans of the Diocese, the Bishop feels he is asking too much of those who have already more than exhausted their resources in trying to respond to the many demands that our present national as well as local conditions have placed upon us.

Never before have appeals for aid been so numerous, so frequent, so insistent, and all expecting a generous response from the already insufficient resources of our hard-working people.

If we ask you, therefore, to think of the Orphans in your offerings on the coming Christmas Day, we do so because the Providence of God has placed them under your care and protection. They are part of His claim upon your charity and generosity.

When a few days ago the great leaders of the war-stricken nations of Europe stood up before the American people and asked them to extend a helping hand to the poor Orphans of the distant battle fields, they were met with an enthusiastic response wherever they went. It was the grand outpouring of noble American hearts, ever ready and happy to aid those in distress.

With hesitation, but nevertheless with confidence, we come with a like appeal to you today. If it is at all possible we would like to see the same generous outpouring at this joyful Christmas time to provide for the wants of the Orphans at home. No matter what the times or what the conditions, these poor children are always with us claiming our care and attention. We are surrounded. It is true, with many other pressing demands, but no matter, for the love of God—and to show our gratitude for all His mercy to us—we will do our best for these little ones who appeal to us in the name of Christ.

Surely we will not shorten our hands towards them nor close our hearts to those who look to us for aid that none else will supply.

During the past year the highest number of children in St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum at one time was 284 of this number 144 were provided with homes. The number of children at St. Ann's Infant Asylum reached 212 during the year. Of this number 176 were provided with homes.

This letter is to be read in all parish Church on Sunday, December 23 and on Christmas Day the collection will be taken up at all the Masses. In communities the collection will be taken up as soon as possible after due announcement to the people.

The offering will be sent to the Chancery, Rev. John C. Goldschmidt.

Wishing you the graces and blessings of a happy Christmas,

Your servant in Christ,

JAMES JOSEPH,
Bishop of Columbus.

Billie Burke Succumbs to Test Not on Screen

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, DEC. 26.—Billie Burke—Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld in private life—is suffering from an experience in real life which outstrips anything she ever attempted in stage or movie experience. When her automobile stalled in snowdrifts Miss Burke and her husband walked for six hours thru two miles and a half of unbroken and snow-piled fields. She arrived home utterly exhausted, and continues to suffer from cold and exhaustion.

Holiday Turkey Meets Foe in Illinois Bird

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, DEC. 26.—Turkey dealers holding out for high holiday prices received a shock today. William Firke, the "Illinois Goose King," is ready to ship 75,000 geese to the New York market. Firke buys all the geese available, fattens them for three weeks on corn and thereby gains from three to five pounds to each goose. Last year he shipped 50,000 birds.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Says an inside bath, before breakfast helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "run-downs," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and refreshing the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of lim-stone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood with the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

ELK NEWSPAPER NETS $300 FOR XMAS CHARITY

Approximately $300 was realized from the sale of the Elk charity edition of the "Christmas Herald" Saturday. Another $300 was realized from the sale of advertising space in the edition. Another $300 was realized from the sale of advertising space in the edition and $296 was donated by members of the club bringing the total amount up to $896.

Presents were sent to the 18 children in the Tuscarawas county home at Dover in observance of the Elks annual custom of doing so. Presents were also sent to the nine men now in the service of Uncle Sam who are members of the club.

One hundred dollars was spent for the municipal Christmas tree and $300 for general charity throughout the city that none of the homes of the poor might be without their share of Christmas cheer.

The largest amount received from the sale of a single paper Saturday was $25, two citizens paying that amount for the edition. W. H. Bachert and W. A. Himebaugh were the two citizens who so generously contributed to the fund by paying this amount for a paper.

An interesting feature of the sale was the fact that W. H. Bachert had agreed to buy a paper for that amount from the first Elk newsie that put in an appearance Saturday. Melvin McKinley was the fortunate man.

E. W. Henke has the honor of the highest sales, he having sold over $106 worth of the papers. Henke was the fortunate Elk who succeeded in selling W. A. Himebaugh the second paper for $25.

HERE'S HOPIN' SHE'S RUINED

LONDON, DEC. 26.—The great Krupp gun works at Essen, the chief source of Germany's armament supply has been swept by fire, but the extent of damage done is not known.

A wireless message from Maestricht, Holland picked up today by the British admiralty said that workmen arriving there from Essen said the works had been burning for 24 hours.

Criminals Shun "Haunted Hoosgow"

LITTLETON, COLO., DEC. 26.—Arapahoe county is saving money thru curtailment of expenses connected with the county jail here because prisoners are willing to plead guilty to most any charge and be sent to the penitentiary in order to escape the tortures of midnight seances with the ghost of a convict who recently hanged himself in a cell of the jail.

Last June, John Whitson, convicted of the murder of his wife, hanged himself in a cell, and now, according to prisoners who have spent a night in the "haunted hoosgow," as the town clock strikes twelve at midnight a shadowy form makes its appearance in the jail corridor and shuffles back and forth in gruesome monotony until the first rays of dawn begin to filter thru the barred windows.

Several prisoners complained to Sheriff Burden recently that they had watched the noiseless figure shamble up and down the corridor during the night and declared the ghost was garbed in khaki trousers, a blue shirt, black slippers and white hose—the apparel Whitson wore on the night he committed suicide.

Sheriff Burden declines to confirm the reports that the jail is haunted, but says the stories are apparently having an excellent effect on the criminal element of the county and keeping the jail population to a minimum.

L. T. McClain, retired farmer 242 Cambridge St., says: "A cold settled in my kidneys and I suffered from kidney complaint. When I tried to stoop over or raise quickly, a twinge caught me in the small of my back and almost took my breath away. Many a time I had shooting pains thru my kidneys and had to sit down for awhile. I had to pass the kidney secretions at night and the secretions were highly colored and scalded. I tried several remedies, but they didn't help me and I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills. Three boxes cured me of the backache and regulated the kidney action."

Eskimo Feast on Caribou Tongue

(International News Service)

PITTSBURG, DEC. 26.—"While the Canadian housewives in the northwest pay $1 for a steak that is not larger than the dollar bill itself, Indians and Eskimos, a few hundred miles in the interior, are slaying thousands of caribou for their tongues only," declared Mrs. Nellie McClung, of Edmundton, Albert, who came here for the Pennsylvania Suffrage Convention.

"Caribou tongue is a company dish among the Eskimos and Indians," said Mrs. McClung. "Every year they kill enough of these animals to feed an army just for the sake of the delicacy."

Suffragists, she said, are planning a campaign of education among the natives in the matter of food conservation.

An amendment to the present law, permitting the selections of women for such duty, is being strongly advocated. No discrimination is to be made in the call for talesmen.

NICHOLAS STATES OBJECT OF MEET AT HIGH SCHOOL

In the first statement given out for publicity concerning the meeting held at the high school building Friday evening, at which the abolishment of the study of German in the local high school was discussed Judge S. H. Nicholas stated that the object of the meeting was misconstrued by the press.

"The meeting was not secret, altho we admit the press was not informed and it was requested that no report be furnished the newspapers by any one in attendance," said the judge. "What we discussed was not primarily the abolishment of the German course at the high school, but the censorship of certain German text-books containing German propaganda. Our proposed action is calculated to affect not only German text-books, but those of all languages which might contain matter detrimental to American patriotism."

Judge Nicholas told the press that it was the object of the promoters to keep the doings of the initial meeting dark until a second meeting could be held and resolutions drawn up and passed. Then the whole matter was to be made public in a statement for publication. The judge admitted, however, that a vote on discarding German from the high school curriculum resulted in only one dissenting voice.

Pershing Wins Confidence Of Allied Chiefs

WASHINGTON, DEC. 26.—Direct assurances of the confidence of both British and French commanders in General Pershing's ability and their satisfaction with the breadth and soundness of his preparations to make American arms effective on the western front have reached Washington with the return from Europe of Major-General Hugh L. Scott, former chief of staff, who was in conference today with Secretary Baker and other War Department officials.

Leaders Confident of Pershing.

The men who are actually leading the allied armies, from the commanders in chief and members of the war ministries down to the corps and division commanders, have been unhesitating in expressing their approval of the chief of the American expeditionary force and his methods.

General Scott visited virtually every part of the battle front and went carefully thru all the training processes of both the French and British armies. He believes General Pershing has laid the foundation for American army training upon what is best in French and British methods as derived from experience. There is no doubt in his mind that American troops will be the equal of any on the front when they come to grips with the German army. They are taking their training enthusiastically.

No Pessimism in Trenches.

There is no pessimism as to the outcome of the war in the fighting lines, General Scott found. The armies of the allies are cool and confident. The confidence of victory among the fighting men, he found, became greater the closer the observer got to the front. There were no doubts in the trenches. Such pessimism as there may be among the British appears to be confined to the noninformed in London. It is not reflected in the army.

General Scott has now personally inspected three fighting fronts, the Russian, French and British.

Broadway in Mourning Over Two Dark Nights

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, DEC. 26.—Paradoxical, by Broadway is now in mourning two nights each week—Sundays and Thursdays. All the big advertising signs, from gum to thread, are not even turned on on the specified evenings. It is possible that Broadway enjoys the novelty of being flooverized, of sacrificing the lights to save coal, but the joy is not mentioned above a whisper. Broadway without lights is something akin to a circus without red lemonade.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Well-known local druggist says everybody is using old-time recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays, we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this thru your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.
